Dean's Message

The students of the School of Social Sciences have decided to communicate with the rest of the University Community through their academic work. This is their way of saying that they matter and that their work matters. For the School, this is a most welcome and gratifying development. It is an initiative anchored by the students and is meant to showcase their academic research output, both written and spoken. Every three months, the work of the students of this School will reach out to the wider academic community in the University of Hyderabad, but also to a much larger republic of letters and ideas in the country and the world. I wish this initiative well and thank every single individual associated with it.

Prof. Jyotirmaya Sharma
Dean, School of Social Science
